What is Gems Camp?
Gems Camp is a two-night, off-campus orientation program designed to help incoming Gemstone students transition into the University of Maryland and the Gemstone Honors Program prior to the first day of classes. Campers participate in fun team building activities and meet new students while learning valuable information about the UMD and Gemstone.

Why Attend Gems Camp?
Gems Camp is attended by about 80% of the incoming Gemstone class. The advantages range from moving to campus early, to meeting students with whom you will be participating in a three-year research project. Gems Camp is the first opportunity students have to meet other new and current Gemstone students and create new memories.

Register for camp at ter.ps/gemscampform by August 3rd!
